Paris – October 16, 2018. Next-gen maintenance management platform Mobility Work has raised a further 1,250 million euros (USD 1,442 million). Mobility Work is a mobile and user-friendly solution inspired by social media, which does not require any training or IT skills.

Community-based, it is a maintenance management platform which allows companies to easily and quickly improve their intervention management, maintenance budget and productivity, thanks in particular to an integrated Big Data tool that facilitates decision-making.

The community is currently counting with nearly 10,000 members from 84 countries, from business fields such as metallurgy, plastics processes, construction, railway, food and beverages, automotive, cosmetics, chemicals and many others.

A significant and promising fundraising

Determined to pursue its development, the team has just convinced its shareholders and business angels to invest an additional capital investment, which increases to 2,250 million euros.

This new round will help accelerate Mobility Work's international expansion and the acquisition of new talent for the start-up, which has already seen its workforce triple in one year from 7 to 22 employees.

"The team's mission is to unlock the maintenance data value chain. We are delighted with this new fundraising campaign, which will enable us to develop new functionalities for our platform to facilitate data exchange and analysis between technicians and suppliers (equipment manufacturers, manufacturers)" says Morgane Guinot, Mobility Work's co-founder.

The end of the year promises to be very active for the start-up, which will attend various trade shows in France (I-Novia, Industries du Futur) and also abroad, including the very famous Consumer Electronic Show (CES) in Las Vegas in January 2019.
